NEW ARRIVALS

Vineyards off of Route 5 near Los Angeles? Well yes, Los Angeles, Chile. A new launch, imported by W.J. Deutsch & Sons, is underway in the Bio Bio Valley. This region is nearly 300 miles south of the familiar Chilean wine growing regions of Maipo, Casablanca, and Aconcagua. LLA I LLA I is the Mapuche word for "strong winds". Along with winds, Bio Bio's proximity to the Pacific Ocean and Andes Mountains make it the coolest wine growing region in Chile. Varying volcanic soils provide their Pinot Noir and Chardonnay fresh fruit character and intensity. Both are 100% single varietal, and single vineyard.

RUTA 22

A second venture from The W.J. Deutsch company brings us to the Neuquen region in Argentina. This small portion of the Patagonia area lies south of Argentina's most famed growing region, Mendoza. This causes a cooler climate and slightly longer growing season. Ruta 22 is named for the main travel route from East to West through Argentina. Famed wine maker, Pascal Marchand, adds Ruta 22 to a resume that includes Comte Armand in Pommard, Domaine de la Vougeraie in Burgundy, and his own signature line from Burgundy.

GEORGES DUBŒUF

Beaujolais Cru 2009 Presell

Overheard about the 2009 vintage in Beaujolais...

"This vintage will only get better with age. Fifteen years from now you will still be able to enjoy the pleasure and magnificence of 2009." - Dominique Capart, winemaker and President of Inter Beaujolais

"truly the vintage of my lifetime... The stars were in alignment, and the sun shone brilliantly on our harvest. The grapes were the most vibrant color I had ever seen! And the result — perfection in the bottle! The 2009 Duboeuf Beaujolais Crus are elegant and perfectly balanced. Such a superior level of wine only occurs maybe once every decade or so, if you are lucky. This vintage will be talked about for years to come!" –

Georges Duboeuf

2006 MALBEC GRAND RESERVE

90 POINTS

The wine has a dark, crusty top to the nose, with solid berry aromas under that. The palate is bright, zesty and features familiar plum and black cherry flavors. And the finish is straightforward but smooth. Stylish, with a little snap, crackle and pop.

WINE ENTHUSIAST MAGAZINE July 31, 2010

2007 TWO VINES CHARDONNAY

87 POINTS BEST VALUE

Creamy and smooth, with a toasty edge to the pear and grapefruit flavors, lingering easily on the open-textured finish. Drink now through 2012.

Wine Spectator
